

Editor's Corner

For quite a while I have been of this opinion and I have said this here before: The weather is slowly working its way around the calendar. Riding season starts later and later and we ride well into November.

2013 will probably be another year where we have snow on Easter. What ever happened to the days when we, as kids, ran around in shorts and t-shirts in our grandparent's backyard to look for the eggs that the Easter Bunny hid? Instead, the furnace is running and racking up the gas bill. Oh, well...

Maybe it does have an upside. Maybe it gives us a chance to finish some of the projects that otherwise would cut into our riding time. I am trying to think this way. At least, we were able to get part of the painting inside the house done that Cindy had wanted for some time now.

And if the weather keeps on going like this, maybe we get even further than we thought we would.

The real end of winter for us is always when I bring home the Corvette from storage and have to start parking my daily car in the driveway. From what I see, this is still about 4 weeks away.

In case there would be a positive surprise, fortunately, two bikes are easily accessible and could be ready quick for a ride.

Although I do not have my hopes up that this is going to happen on Good Friday...

Until then, keep the snow boots in reach let's be patient.

See you on Sunday!

Mike

Happy Easter

It would be a good thing to use really bright colors for your Easter Eggs this year, so the kids are able to find them in the snow.....

Our 2013 Spring Poker Run will be on May 19. There will be only one more club meeting before that date. We need to finalize all the jobs for preparation.

I have not received any recipes for publication from the membership, so I am including one from my time as a student, living in a dorm:

Mike Simon's Batchelor Salad

- 1 head iceberg lettuce
1 sharp knife
Your favorite dressing

Take the head lettuce and cut in half with a sharp knife. Although you may be inclined to do this on the counter top, for the sake of peace in the kitchen, I strongly recommend to place it on a cutting board. Get your favorite bottle of dressing out from behind all the other bottles in the refrigerator. Check for any mold before use! Hold half head in your left hand with cut side up and pour dressing over it with your right hand. Eat over the sink! Bon appétit!

A Presidential Address:

Hello Club Members:

Time flies and it is end of March already! We can start thinking seriously about getting the bikes out on the street for another season soon.

I am pleased about the lively discussions about possible activities we have in the club during our meetings.

We have proposals for a presence during Open House events at local dealerships to promote the club.

We may have a brochure to feature details about the club as a handout to potential new members. I would like to have two volunteers who will gauge the members' opinions about what we should have in there.

Also, the discussion about a new club logo has created some really nice feedback. I think we are on the right track there.

Before you know it, May will be here and with it, our Poker Run. We still need to address several areas of activity and I would like to ask you all to come to the next club meeting(s) so we can assign jobs to volunteers both for preparation and execution.

Many of us have Good Friday off and if the weather is nice, maybe we could have a Kick-off ride. Let's see as we get closer and coordinate this through e-mail.
